

Independent Scholars Association of Australia
NSW Chapter

In collaboration with the State Library of NSW

Annual Seminar

In the Aftermath of the First World War
– *Women’s Legal Status Act 1918

Metcalf Auditorium, State Library of NSW
Macquarie Street Sydney

21 July 2018
12.45-4.30pm

ISAA Members & Friends of State Library $15 General Public $20

Bookings essential: isaansw@gmail.com

Pay on the day OR EFT

Commonwealth Bank

BSB 062 000

ACC # 1078 3156

No refunds after 18 July 2018

Independent Scholars Association of Australia
NSW Chapter

In collaboration with the State Library of NSW

Annual Seminar

In the Aftermath of the First World War
– *Women’s Legal Status Act 1918

Metcalf Auditorium, State Library of NSW
Macquarie Street Sydney

21 July 2018
12.45-4.30pm

ISAA Members & Friends of State Library $15 General Public $20

Bookings essential: isaansw@gmail.com

Pay on the day OR EFT

Commonwealth Bank

BSB 062 000

ACC # 1078 3156

No refunds after 18 July 2018

Independent Scholars Association of Australia (ISAA)

The Independent Scholars Association of Australia was founded in 1995 as a national organisation to facilitate the wide dissemination in the public sphere of the significant contributions to knowledge made by independent scholars. The New South Wales Chapter through its sub-committees (Work-in-Progress, Open Forum and Seminar) organises a range of events for members and the general public.

The annual Seminar held in collaboration with the State Library of NSW features prominent scholars and experts from various fields.

The aftermath of the First World War ushered in significant social changes for women. In November 1918, despite some resistance from the 'legislating brotherhood', the NSW parliament passed the Women's Legal Status Act, which enabled women to practise as lawyers, become Justices of the Peace and stand for election to local government and the Legislative Assembly. In this Seminar, prominent women in law, the legislature and local government will explore the contributions women have made to the law profession, to politics and legislation and to local government since the introduction of that Act.

Dr Anne Twomey is Professor of Constitutional Law and Director, Constitutional Reform Unit in the Law School at the University of Sydney.

Jenny Aitchison MP is the Member for Maitland in the New South Wales Legislative Assembly and Acting Shadow Minister for Women.

Kate Eastman SC is a Senior Fellow at Monash University and a barrister at New Chambers in Sydney.

Carolyn Corrigan, Her Worship the Mayor of Mosman.

Jilly Gibson, Her Worship the Mayor of North Sydney.

Independent Scholars Association of Australia (ISAA)

The Independent Scholars Association of Australia was founded in 1995 as a national organisation to facilitate the wide dissemination in the public sphere of the significant contributions to knowledge made by independent scholars. The New South Wales Chapter through its sub-committees (Work-in-Progress, Open Forum and Seminar) organises a range of events for members and the general public.

The annual Seminar held in collaboration with the State Library of NSW features prominent scholars and experts from various fields.

The aftermath of the First World War ushered in significant social changes for women. In November 1918, despite some resistance from the 'legislating brotherhood', the NSW parliament passed the Women's Legal Status Act, which enabled women to practise as lawyers, become Justices of the Peace and stand for election to local government and the Legislative Assembly. In this Seminar, prominent women in law, the legislature and local government will explore the contributions women have made to the law profession, to politics and legislation and to local government since the introduction of that Act.

Dr Anne Twomey is Professor of Constitutional Law and Director, Constitutional Reform Unit in the Law School at the University of Sydney.

Jenny Aitchison MP is the Member for Maitland in the New South Wales Legislative Assembly and Acting Shadow Minister for Women.

Kate Eastman SC is a Senior Fellow at Monash University and a barrister at New Chambers in Sydney.

Carolyn Corrigan, Her Worship the Mayor of Mosman.

Jilly Gibson, Her Worship the Mayor of North Sydney.

